

MEETING THE PROJECT MANAGEMENT CHALLENGE

2004

Abstract

“International Project Management”

The increasing complexity of NASA's missions, the corresponding upturn of their costs, and the growing interactions of the international science communities have necessitated the Agency's expansion into the arena of International Project Management. NASA has a history of successful international collaborations, and as with such endeavors this field has its challenges and rewards. Join this panel discussion as four senior NASA executives will share their knowledge and perspectives and respond to your questions, comments and concerns about management on this exciting topic.

NASA Project Management Conference